

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The invention provides photoresists and resist preparative methods. Methods of the invention include treatment of a resist resin with methylene chloride or other organic solvent to remove low molecular weight materials. It has been found that the 5 treated resin can be formulated into resists that provide manufactured electronic devices with significantly reduced defects.